Timber 2009

The Pennsylvania Forest Products Association (PFPA) and Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences invite you to Timber 2009, the Forest Products Equipment and Technology Exposition. Timber 2009 will be the best marketing opportunity to reach forest products and biomass companies in the leading hardwood-producing state in the nation.

Timber 2009 will be held May 29–30 at Penn State's Ag Progress Days site at Rock Springs, Pa., nine miles southwest of State College on Pa. Route 45. Centrally located and easily accessible to forest products companies in Pennsylvania and surrounding states, the 55 acres of exhibition grounds include indoor and outdoor exhibit options, with ample space for on-site equipment demonstrations.

Timber 2009 combines the resources of PFPA—Pennsylvania's largest forest products trade association—and Penn State, the state's land-grant university that offers a nationally recognized forestry and forest products program, as well as experience in hosting quality commercial trade events.

The Right Show for Exhibitors

Pennsylvania is home to more than 2,700 forest products companies and more than 500,000 forest landowners. Timber 2009 offers exhibitors an affordable way to show your products and services to thousands of high-quality, industry-focused attendees.

A comprehensive attendee marketing effort will target loggers, sawmills, value-added processors, biomass companies, and forest landowners in Pennsylvania and surrounding states.

Timber 2009 has affordable space rental rates and FREE electricity and forklift services.

Enjoy savory snacks to complete meals from our nonprofit food vendors.

The Right Show for Attendees

Attendees can explore the equipment and services of an estimated 100-plus exhibitors that are focused on serving the needs of the forest products industry and emerging biomass markets. See up-close machinery demonstrations, experience new and emerging technology, visit with business assistance specialists, and attend seminars to learn about new ideas and business opportunities—all without an admission or parking charge.

Come to Timber 2009 to discover the latest in machinery, equipment, and technology advancements, plus learn about financial options and business assistance programs and more.
